Synopsis

From USA Today bestselling author Julianne MacLean comes the next instalment in her popular Color of Heaven Series, where people are affected by real life magic and miracles that change everything they once believed about life and love. Having spent a lifetime in competition with his older brother Aaron "who always seemed to get the girl" Jack Peterson leaves the U.S. to become a foreign correspondent in the Middle East. When a roadside bomb forces him to return home to recover from his wounds, he quickly becomes the most celebrated journalist on television, and is awarded his own prime time news program. Now, wealthy and successful beyond his wildest dreams, Jack believes he has finally found where he is meant to be. But when a giant commercial airliner explodes in the sky over his summer house in Cape Elizabeth, all hell breaks loose as the wreckage crashes to the ground. He has no idea that his life is about to take another astonishing turn. Meg Andrews grew up with a fear of flying, but when it meant she wouldn't be able to visit her boyfriend on the opposite side of the country, she confronted her fear head-on and earned her pilot's license. Now, a decade later, she is a respected airline crash investigator, passionate about her work, to the point of obsession. When she arrives in the picturesque seaside community of Cape Elizabeth to investigate a massive airline disaster, she meets the famous and charismatic Jack Peterson, who has his own personal fascination with plane crashes. As the investigation intensifies, Meg and Jack feel a powerful, inexplicable connection to each other. Soon, they realize that the truth behind the crash and the mystery of their connection can only be discovered through the strength of the human spirit, the timeless bonds of family, and the gift of second chances.

"The Color of a Promise" is a romantic and touching story with a dash of the paranormal that I won through Goodread Giveaways and begins with plane crash in 1984 that robbed thirteen year old Jack Peterson of his best friend Millicent Davenport. Over the ensuing years his life takes some unexpected turns after he becomes a foreign correspondent and is severely injured in a roadside bomb attack in Afghanistan. After the tragic incident his popularity soars with the American people, his dreams of success a reality when he's offered a prime time news program. Yet for all his achievements he's still plagued by a rocky relationship with his brother, the ache of his injuries and a yearning for a lasting love that alludes him. But Jack's love life begins to come together after an airline explodes in the sky over his parent's summer home in Cape Elizabeth, the wreckage landing on the beach nearby. Meg Andrews a structures specialist with the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) who's struggled to come to grips with her fear of flying over the years is sent to the Cape to investigate the accident only to find herself inexplicably drawn to Jack the handsome and magnetic television journalist. The story explores not only the truth behind the crash, Jack and Meg's mysterious connection but forgiveness, reincarnation and second chances. Told from Jack and Meg's perspective, the reader is swept up not only into the investigation of a tragic airline crash, the turmoil of the brothers' relationship, but the blossoming of a romance with a connection to the past. Emotionally-charged and infused with twists and turns the story keeps you enthralled from the first page to the last.
